

AUREL

PATH 03

Niche prompt stacks

Make Money Online with AI

THE OPERATOR BLUEPRINT

PATH 03

Niche prompt stacks

Twenty-five prompts that finish a job beat a thousand that sound clever.

Who this is for

A trade or hobby you know from the inside: realtors, tutors, gyms, writers, clinics.

First sale

A niche buyer who uses the first prompt the same day.

Time to first

5–14 days

Cash window

$12–$29

Tools

A PDF or Notion doc, three before/after examples, Stripe or Etsy or Stan.

Leave this alone

Generic '1,000 ChatGPT prompts.' That market is dead and noisy.

Why niche wins

Generic prompt packs are free on every platform. A stack for 'pediatric clinic SMS that stays compliant-sounding and human' is not. You are selling vocabulary and constraints the general pack does not have.

Every prompt in the stack needs three parts: inputs (what they paste), output format (what they get), and a done check (how they know it is usable). Without those, it is a toy.

The first 72 hours

List the ten repeating writing jobs in that niche. Pick the five that happen every week. Write five prompts each, or write 25 that cover a month of work.

Run all 25 on real or realistic inputs. Keep the three best before/after pairs as proof. Write a one-page SOP: which prompt when.

Price $19. Title includes the niche word they would search. Ask in the Facebook group or forum you already belong to — helpfully, once.

The path, step by step

Step 1. Sit with a practitioner, even if it is you. Write the jobs they hate writing.

Step 2. For each job, write the prompt as a form: 'Paste [x]. I will return [y] in [format]. I will not [constraint].'

Step 3. Add a second pass prompt: 'Tighten this. Keep the facts. Cut the fluff.' Bundles sell when there is a polish step.

Step 4. Show three before/after. Blur names. Keep the texture of real work.

Step 5. Update when the model changes. A dated 'tested on [month year]' line builds trust.

Step 6. Sell on your site first. Marketplace second if the titles match search.

Copy you can send

Listing: '25 prompts for [niche job] — inputs, output format, done check. Tested this month.'

Post: 'Generic prompt packs are free. This one is for [person] who has to write [job] every week. $19.'

Week-by-week

Week 1: 25 prompts and three proofs. Week 2: listing live, ten personal shares in the niche. Week 3: add the SOP.

Week 4: a bundle with the calendar or checklist if they ask for it.

Mistakes

Clever prompts that do not match how the job is actually done. Medical, legal, or financial claims. Copying someone else's stack and swapping the niche word.

Close the book. Do the first 72 hours. Do not tour the rest tonight.