THE OPERATOR BLUEPRINT

PATH 04

AI-assisted short-form

AI writes the outline. You say it. The offer sits at the end, every time.

Who this is for

You can talk to a camera or screen-record, and you have one thing to sell.

First sale

A profile visit that becomes an email or a $19 checkout.

Time to first

14–30 days of posting

Cash window

Traffic to a $19–$47 file

Tools

Phone, CapCut, one platform for 30 days, Stan or Beacons.

Leave this alone

Five platforms. Faceless slideshows with no offer. Buying views.

The job of a video

Every video does one of three things: teach a small piece, diagnose a mistake, or send them to the next step. If it does none of those, it is entertainment you are not getting paid for.

AI is useful for hooks and outlines. It is poison if you read it like a press release. Generate ten hooks. Speak the three you would actually say to a friend. Cut the rest.

The first 72 hours

Pick one platform. TikTok, Instagram, or YouTube Shorts — not all three. Write the one-line offer that every video can point to.

Generate 20 hooks. Film three 20-second videos: a mistake, a principle, a walkthrough. Same offer at the end. Same link in the bio.

Publish one a day starting today. Batch the next five on day three. That is the 72 hours. The algorithm is not the bottleneck. Volume of honest posts is.

The path, step by step

Step 1. One offer in the bio. Not a menu.

Step 2. A hook formula: 'Stop doing [common thing] if you want [result].' Then show the better way in 15 seconds.

Step 3. On-screen text for people who watch muted. Your face or your screen — pick one style and keep it for 30 days.

Step 4. Batch. Two hours, ten videos, beats ten days of 'I should post.'

Step 5. Read comments. The objections are next week's scripts. Paste them into AI and ask for outlines, then rewrite.

Step 6. Pin a comment with the next step if the platform allows it.

Step 7. After 30 videos, keep the 5 that got saves and comments. Repeat those shapes. Kill the rest.

Copy

Hook: 'Stop starting from a blank chat if you need [result] this week.'

End card: 'The file is $19. Link in bio. One job, not a catalog.'

Week-by-week

Week 1: 7 videos, same offer. Week 2: 7 more, comments become scripts. Week 3: repeat winners. Week 4: one live or one longer walkthrough pointing at the same checkout.

Mistakes

Posting with no offer. Switching platforms when a post dies. Using a voice you would not use in a kitchen. Buying followers. Explaining your whole catalog in 20 seconds.

Close the book. Do the first 72 hours. Do not tour the rest tonight.
