Brands need simple product videos. You do not need to be famous. You need to be clear.

Who this is for

You are comfortable on camera. You can hold a product and talk.

First sale

One paid brief for two videos.

Time to first

7–21 days

Cash window

$150–$800 for a first two-video pack

Tools

Phone, CapCut, a rate card, AI for script outlines only.

Leave this alone

Working for exposure. Promising virality.

The work

UGC-style ads are not influencer fame. They are short product videos a brand can run. Demo, list, stitch, talking-head. Keep it human. AI drafts the script. You throw away anything you would not say in a store aisle.

Pick a niche you already buy in: kitchen tools, software, skincare, hardware. A sample ad for a product on your shelf is your portfolio. Two samples beat a PDF about your 'media kit.'

The first 72 hours

Film two sample ads. Edit. Put them on a simple page with a package: two videos, one revision, a deadline, a price.

Send the page to five small brands you already use. Do not wait to be discovered on a marketplace.

The path, step by step

Step 1. Rate card: starter pack, rush fee, extra revision.

Step 2. Brief intake: product facts, claims you will not make, examples they like.

Step 3. Script in your mouth. Then shoot. Then edit.

Step 4. Deliver vertical files they can run. You are not their media buyer unless that is a second package.

Step 5. Stay in one niche until you have repeat clients.

Mistakes

Medical claims. Fake urgency you know is false. Unlimited rounds. Waiting for a platform to send you brands.

Copy and week-by-week

Rate card line: "Two product videos, one revision, seven days. Samples on this page."

Week 1: two samples. Week 2: five emails to brands you already buy. Week 3: deliver the first paid brief.

Close the book. Do the first 72 hours. Do not tour the rest tonight.
